

Sacred Heart Homeschoolers Co-op

What & Where: A new Catholic Homeschooling Co-Op meeting two mornings a month at St. John the Baptist in Dayton from January 2019 – May 2019. We are open to the parish and local Catholic community.

How it works: For our maiden semester we will be meeting two Wednesday mornings a month. Our day will begin with the celebration of the Mass. After a little bit of fellowship time we will split up into different aged groups for classes (highlighted below) and break for snack, play time then back in for another class. Most classes flow right into one another, but you are free to pick and choose which ones to register for.

Cost: Each family will have a membership fee of $40 to cover administrative costs. Each class has its own fee paid directly to the teacher or tutor providing instruction. Payment is due on Wednesday, January 2nd at our evening Mass and potluck dinner kick-off. Father will be consecrating our group to The Sacred Heart of Jesus so we ask that everyone join in. Please bring your families!

Sacred Heart Homeschoolers is a co-op of Catholic homeschooling families providing our children opportunities to encounter Jesus and experience interior conversion through the celebration of The Mass, educational enrichment, and life giving fellowship with a special devotion to the Sacred Heart of Jesus. We uphold the Catholic teaching that "Parents have the first responsibility for the education of their children;" Therefore we join together in a spirit of hospitality to encourage and support one another in the task of homeschooling.
